

A photograph showing several people in a park-like setting near a body of water. They are engaged in environmental work, specifically planting trees. One person in the foreground is bending over, holding a small tree sapling. Another person to the right is also working with a tree. The background shows a calm body of water and some buildings, suggesting an urban waterfront area.

Addressing the Elephant in the Room: New Electeds

Low Carbon Concrete Update

A wide-angle photograph of the Seattle skyline at sunset. The sky is a warm orange and yellow. In the foreground, the Space Needle stands tall on the left. The city's high-rise buildings are silhouetted against the bright sky. In the middle ground, the Great Wheel and the Aurora Bridge are visible. The water of Elliott Bay is in the lower right, with industrial cranes and a ship. In the far background, Mount Rainier is visible as a dark, snow-capped peak.
